TOTAL RECALL

If you witnessed a crime, how many of the details would you
accurately remember?

Three contestants ... five rounds ... a big cash prize
... and a nationwide
audience who are about to find out they are much smarter than they think!

Total Recall
... proving you're much smarter than you think!

Fifty per cent of what we store in our brains will be gone inside an hour – but not in this game! Total Recall is a unique, new memory-based quiz show which pits contestants – either as individuals or in couples – against each other in fascinating studio games. The result is a quiz show phenomenon that will surprise and inform the viewer like never before.

The key to winning memory games is not how much you store in your brain but how you store it. And the amazing thing is that you can fix it instantly ... and by simply watching this gameshow the viewer will find out how.

Total Recall uniquely empowers the viewer to play against the studio contestants, leaving the gratifying impression that the viewer is much smarter than they think.

In half hour or one hour versions, the contestants are tested on different forms of memory – visual, verbal, long and short-term. All of the games can be played by the home viewer as well. The games are clever and practical – from eye-witness testimony at a crime scene to remembering details of a scene from a favourite soap opera.

Set in a high tech environment, making full use of graphics, the three contestants battle it out to see who has the highest recall quotient.

Total Recall is a show any one of any age can play – it's dependent on memory rather than knowledge, giving it great play-along at home.

The question is – how much can you remember about what you just saw happen right in front of your eyes?
